TEUTONIC ALLIES
PUSHING FORWARD
ALONG TWO WINGS*Petrograd Admits Germans and Austrians are Gaining.*CENTER LINE HOLDING FIRM

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 16.—The German front in the east is holding firm, but the Austrians are pushing forward along two wings. The German front in the east is holding firm, but the Austrians are pushing forward along two wings. The German front in the east is holding firm, but the Austrians are pushing forward along two wings.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The general offensive of the Teutonic allies along the extended eastern front is continuing successfully on both flanks, but without any visible forward movement on the front toward Warsaw or in the Carpathians.

The Russian report that the Austrians have been successful in capturing the city of Bukovina, has not been received from any other source, but Petrograd admits officially that the Austrians are still advancing in Bukovina in considerable force, and that desperate fighting marks the operations in the Carpathians, where the Russians are claiming minor successes.

In East Prussia the Russians have not yet regained their fortified lines, and the German advances, while not checked, seem to British observers to be proceeding with less speed. Parts reports from the western front that the sole activity consists in artillery engagements, in which the guns of the allies have been successful in silencing batteries north of Ypres and destroying German trenches at Beuvensels.

In diplomatic circles the replies of Germany to notes from neutral powers concerning Germany's proposed march into zone are awaited with interest. Great Britain's reply concerning the use of neutral flags is given secondary importance. The German press is holding that satisfactory arrangements have been made on the question of neutral flags would constitute the most safeguard to American shipping.

GERMANY HAS NO FEAR THAT FRIENDSHIP IS ENDANGERED.
By Associated Press.
BERLIN, via London, Feb. 16.—The London Standard today publishes an interview with General von Seeckt, the German chief of staff, in which he says that Germany has no fear that the relations between Germany and the United States are endangered by the present military situation.

"I regard the relations today between our two countries calmly and with confidence, and I believe pending questions will be solved in a manner mutually satisfactory. The men at the head of the governments in Berlin and Washington are not permitting themselves to be influenced either by the press or by public opinion. The public in the United States as well as in Germany should await developments quietly."

There the train was transferred from German to Dutch authorities, but the German ambulance staff remained on board. The men were weary, but cheerful at the prospect of returning to England.

JUDGE DAYTON ASKS RIGHT TO ANSWER ONE CHARGE

Seeks to Produce Evidence Concerning Resignation of Judge Jackson.
Dayton Deposition is Read.
By Associated Press.

WHEELING, Feb. 16.—At the opening of the hearing today by the congressional subcommittee of judiciary in charges against Federal Judge A. G. Dayton, Attorney John D. Howard, counsel for Judge Dayton, asked permission to call a witness to produce documentary evidence of the charges against the late Judge J. J. Jackson and his subsequent resignation.

Judge Jackson was Judge Dayton's predecessor on the federal bench. The defense has no authority to call witnesses at the request was taken under advisement.

Widener Corcor, clerk of the circuit court of Harborside, the first witness, read a deposition alleged to have been made by Judge Dayton in a suit in Harborside county. The deposition was in regard to the appointment and read, "There was no man on earth responsible for my appointment as federal judge. President Wilson stated to me that he secured no influence brought to bear to get me a personal appointment and that he would make it if all the congressmen were against me."

In the same deposition Judge Dayton says he had been secretly in a note for J. S. Peter, former Republican candidate for governor and that a judgment had been secured against him on the note.

Howard's testimony of Floyd Peter of Harborside, N. Y., was objected to by counsel for Judge Dayton, but Chairman McMillan held that it must be admitted to get at the truth, and that in due time Judge Dayton, if presented for trial by the report of the committee, would be given opportunity to defend his rights.

Peter said that the existence of a photograph of the late Judge Jackson taken in Atlantic City was known to Judge Dayton and that Judge Dayton would consent to resign until this photograph was produced. Jackson, according to Peter, was offered by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad a large sum of money to act as their attorney if he would resign, but Jackson never resigned until he saw the picture.

GOVERNOR WON'T TESTIFY

West Virginia Executive Not to Be Called.
By Associated Press.

WHEELING, Feb. 16.—Governor J. B. Hatfield will not be a witness in the hearing in federal court on the appeal of the Manufacturers' Light & Heat Company from the decision of the public service commission refusing the former to reduce the rate for gas in this state.

It had been announced that the governor would take the witness stand to reply to the charges made by the company that he coerced members of the commission in their decision. When the hearing resumed today, Attorney General A. L. Lilly announced the decision reached as to the governor as a witness saying, "I don't see why he should come."

Attorney Lilly appeared for the first time at the opening of the hearing today. Attorney A. Leo Wolf, for the company, called upon him as representing the public service commission to produce executive order No. 1 and a letter from Governor Hatfield of January 9, 1914, which formally was complied with.

A request to produce "any other" without specifying dates or names of documents did not bring results, for, "We have none," Lilly made inquiry. "Well, apparently not satisfied with the reply, appeared to Special Master J. W. Vandervort who asked what further could be expected, upon Judge Hatfield's assertion. He then asked for permission of counsel for the state to have Commissioner Lee S. Ott and Wade C. Kilmer testify under oath if they had any other letters from the public service commission, whereupon a recess was taken while the attorneys went into conference.

STATE SENATE IN TILT OVER CATLIN
MINE FOREMAN LAW

Measure is Postponed Despite Efforts to Have
It Passed.

LIVELY DEBATE IN THE HOUSE

Payment of Newspaper Advertising
Bills for Constitutional Amendments is Disputed. But Measure is Passed.
Repeal of Blue Law is Proposed.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 16.—The first tilt in the Senate over consideration of a bill at the present session came this morning over the Catlin bill providing that miners in the anthracite region who have served five years in the actual mining of coal shall be eligible to mine foremanships without special examination.

The bill was on third reading and first passage and Thompson of Lewis county moved that its further consideration be postponed for the present. Catlin strongly objected and demanded that the bill be considered. On a viva voce vote Thompson's motion was apparently agreed to and the chair decided, but immediately afterward on Catlin's request withdrew his decision and entertained a motion for a roll call. The vote was 10 yeas and 10 nays, the yeas being 10 yeas and 10 nays.

The McNeill bill to take the police and firemen out of politics, which is the application of any municipality except first class cities, passed finally without opposition and now goes to the House.

The House bill appropriating $528,000 to pay the expense for the eradication of the foot and mouth disease in this state passed finally and now goes to the Senate.

Senator Cross introduced a bill extending the corporations act of 1911 to all manufacturing companies, while Senator Moore introduced an appropriation of $25,000 for the construction of a highway from the coal fields to the coast.

Other state bills tend to prohibit unlicensed residents from fishing in the state; repeal the blue laws of 1840, for as it related to the sale or delivery of the necessities of life on Sunday. The Senate recessed until 9 o'clock tonight.

Spirited debate in the House in which the constitutionality of the bill was questioned, followed the passage of the bill. The bill appropriating $16,000 and compelling the auditor general to pay the full newspaper bill for advertising the constitutional amendments of 1912 and 1913 and 1914.

Representative Swan of Allegheny presented the draft of a measure requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night or during heavy fog and persons in charge of herds of animals on highways must also carry lights. No vehicle can pass an overtaking street car on the side on which passengers alight unless 15 feet away from the car. Many claims of the state have been made of similar import but it is asserted that no more are honored in the branch than enforced.

Representative Wobensmith of Philadelphia, who appropriated $234,800 to the state game commission for two years, while Adams of Luzerne would appropriate $25,000 for the support of the national guard and state militia for maintenance and deficiencies.

A bill of Representative Oakes of Columbia would require county commissioners and grand jurors to visit and inspect schools, houses of detention, homes, convents and asylums, and authorize courts to appoint commissioners of three to make special investigations, or make public reports.

STATE SENATE CONDEMNNS DEMOCRATIC TARIFF LAW

Opposition Nearly Finds Itself Voting to Censure Its Own Party When Resolution is Up.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 16.—The Democrats of the Senate almost went to sleep at the speech last night and allowed a resolution to be adopted by unanimous consent which calls upon Congress to repeal the present tariff law and give adequate protection to labor and industry. They woke up just at the last minute and asked for a vote on the resolution.

The resolution was introduced by Senator J. H. Vane of Philadelphia. One objection would have prevented its immediate consideration and would have required its reference to the Federal relations committee. President Frank H. McClain gave the Democrats an opportunity to uphold the administration of President Woodrow Wilson but no one objected. He then called for a viva voce vote on the adoption of the resolution. He was just preparing to announce that the resolution was unanimously adopted when Senator Henry Washburn of York, Democrat, asked for a yeas and nays vote. This resulted in the adoption of the resolution, 39 to 10. The opponents were the 10 Democrats and Smith the Washington party senator.

ONE DECLARED MAD

Dr. F. N. Sherrick Now
Working to Prevent Spread of Rabies.

THREE PERSONS ALSO BITTEN

State Authorities Send Report Following Examination of Slain Dog's Head; Pasteur Treatment is Recommended for Those Nipped, Saturday.

A telegram received by City Clerk A. O. Blier last evening from the laboratory of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board at Philadelphia states that the dog killed here last Saturday was afflicted with rabies. The board has been sent on for examination that afternoon.

Three persons were bitten by the dog during its travels through the city and South Connelville, and it is believed that a number of dogs also were attacked by the brute. Dr. F. N. Sherrick, representative of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board here, is seeking information as to the dogs who were bitten. He asks any person who knows of a dog attacked by the rabid one to notify him, so that he may take steps to prevent a further spread of rabies.

Edward Metzger, the 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Metzger of South Connelville, was bitten twice by the dog. One of the wounds in the right leg was a bad one, but the other did not draw blood. Two little girls from South Connelville named Toner and Smith were also bitten. E. H. Yankin, a Baltimore & Ohio brakeman, was also attacked, but the dog's teeth only tore his trousers and did not reach the flesh.

Efforts will be made by the Health Department to secure the Pasteur for those bitten, since it has been learned that the dog was mad. This may be administered by local physicians, though better results may be obtained if the patient can be removed to a hospital.

WINDOWS WORKS OF ART

Those of New Presbyterian Church to Be Finest in This Section

At a meeting of the building committee of the First Presbyterian Church last evening in the Third Trust building, Count L. von Gerlach of Columbus, representing the firm that will install the art windows, declared that no church in this section of the state will have as beautiful windows as the new church at Green and Pittsburgh streets when completed.

A number of windows have been submitted by the older Presbyterian churches, others will be taken from classes and still others will be memory of members who have passed away. Among the most beautiful one will be two on the Green street side, one depicting the women at the tomb, following the Resurrection, and the other will portray Christ at Emmaus.

The church is well under way. The plastering of the parsonage has been completed and the interior of the church is ready to be lathed. Work was commenced today on the plastering of the basement. It is expected that Rev. Proudfitt will be able to occupy the new parsonage by April 1, if the present rate of progress keeps up.

HIGBEE SLANDER SUIT IS

This Time Plaintiff Asks That Case
Be Held Over; Files of the Courier Used in Law Suit.
Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 16.—Famous for its appearance on the common pleas court trial last term after the "Higbee case" again has been continued. The case was to come up for trial tomorrow, but a continuance has been granted at the request of the plaintiff. It is probable that the case never will come to trial. The March trial list will be notable for the absence of this case, and it may not get a place on the June list.

The suit for slander against Attorney Higbee grew out of a murder trial in the year and a half court about five years ago. In an address to the jury, Mr. Higbee is alleged to have made some remarks concerning William L. Hargreaves who lived in the vicinity of Point Marion. The suit for damages against him followed.

Only one case was tried in common pleas court yesterday, that of John B. Keim against Thomas H. Miller and John G. Miller to recover $500 from the latter, alleged to have been taken from Keim's farm in Springdale township by the defendants. Much of the time of the court was taken up by the plaintiff in attempting to prove his title to the property. That the property had been offered at sheriff's sale in 1883 was shown by files of the Connelville Courier presented in court by James J. Driscoll, secretary and treasurer of the Courier Company. The testimony was completed yesterday, and the case went to the jury this forenoon.

In opinions handed down by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen, judgment was given for the Courier Company. The cases of the Central Phonograph Company against Max Michaelson and Louis Yanowitz, suing for $18.84 and $2.28, respectively, heard by Justice Hildinger on February 5, 1914. On February 25, judgment was given for the plaintiff in both cases. On March 31, the defendants took out writs of certiorari, the exceptions to the record being that the justice reversed his decision indefinitely; that judgment was not rendered within 10 days after the hearing; that no notice was given to the parties or their counsel of the time when the decision of the justice would be rendered.

Suit was instituted today by Ludwig Kovack against John Madachina for $322 and interest from November 19, 1912. The plaintiff alleges that he made a loan to Madachina for the sum of $322, which he has not repaid. The suit was filed in the civil court.

The will of Nathan Smith of Brownsville, probated today, leaves his entire estate, valued at $7,700 to his widow, Sarah J. Smith.

What money they had, they said, had been lost on the way. They were each given 25 cents carfare and told to take the first car back home.

Mitchell Gibson, 11, a small colored boy, wandered away from his mother's side yesterday afternoon and was found about 5 o'clock last night when he went into a store. METHODIST MEN
HOLD BIG RALLY;
VISITORS TESTIFY

Delegations From Scottsdale,
Vanderbilt and Dunbar Take Part.

CHRISTIAN REVIVAL CONTINUES

Crowds Continuing to Attend Meetings
Led by Rev. G. W. Buckner; Men to Hold Afternoon Prayer Meeting in Bank; Breakfast Enters Lists.

A big rally for men, the second of the present revival campaign at the Methodist Episcopal Church, was held last night. Delegations were present from Scottsdale, Dunbar and Vanderbilt and the visitors took part in the service by giving their testimony. Rev. Ralph Bell of Vanderbilt delivered the special plea for men to come forward to the altar and five respondents came forward.

The church was crowded with men, the women being excluded. There was no sermon by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Buckner. It being in the nature of a jubilee service. In addition to the visitors who testified, many members of the congregation spoke briefly. Several of the Scottsdale men who testified stated that they were converted during the Davis and Mills meetings three years ago, and had kept their faith. The music was by a special men's choir. Although no further announcement was made, the meetings will come to a close on Wednesday evening. Delegations were also on hand representing the West Penn and the Erie churches.

At the Christian Church the revival meetings continue with unabated interest. Rev. G. W. Buckner of Southport, England, spoke on "Barabbas or Christ?"

There will be a special prayer meeting for men tomorrow afternoon in the First National Bank building, this making the third meeting of this nature to be held by the Christians. The cotton paper meeting will be continued. The arrangements for tomorrow follow: West Side, Mrs. George Freeman, Eighth street, Mrs. Edward Freeman, Eleventh street, Mrs. G. H. Percy, Johnston avenue, Mrs. R. F. Lyle, Center street, South Connelville, Lydia Fisher, Mrs. Allen Wolmer, leader; Snydertown, Mrs. R. S. Matheis, South Pittsburgh street, Mrs. J. A. Reener, leader; East Park and Central, Mrs. John Chubb, Tripp street, Mrs. Isaac Leitch, leader; East Main street, Mrs. Mary Washington, Mrs. Ella Hyatt, leader.

"Barabbas or Christ?" was the theme of Rev. G. W. Buckner's sermon. The speaker proceeded to point out in detail the claims of Jesus and to vindicate those claims in the light of history and of the world's experience of Christ.

It was the light of the world, the savior of man, the Christ who said, "The world should accept him and the sinner should confess him. The man who refuses to own him as Lord would release Barabbas and say let Christ be crucified. He that is not for me is against me, and that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad."

A successful revival is now under way at the Church of God at Breakneck. Last night an interesting sermon on "Heaven" was preached by George Klefer. Rev. Stevens has the meetings in charge.

FOR THE BUSINESS WOMAN.

The best of taste is displayed in this blouse and tailored skirt designed for the dainty but practical business woman. It has distinction and style without oversteering the remark of refined taste. The blouse is of crepe de chine which may at first thought seem hardly practicable for general wear. This, however, is an error for no material gives better service and in this instance its practicability is increased by the color which is the new shade called putty. The blouse is machine hemstitched and trimmed in large torn buttons. The skirt is perfectly tailored and is of crepe de chine. The blouse and skirt are made of the same material.

A Healthy, Happy Wife.
Is the greatest inspiration a man can have and the life of the family, yet how many homes in this fair land are blighted by the ill health of wife and mother?

It may be backaches, headaches, the torture of a displacement, or some ailment peculiar to her sex which makes life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, to restore her to health and happiness.—Adv.

RHEUMATISM IN JOINTS.
Pain Disappears and Swelling Vanishes in a Few Days.

That is what happens if you use (though) the wonderful remedy that A. A. Clarke and all druggists sell on "money back if not cured" plan. There is a vast amount of rheumatism in this vicinity, and if you happen to suffer, call his attention to this generous offer.

Rheuma is a quick-acting prescription. You will know your rheumatism is leaving 24 hours after you take the first dose. It dissolves the uric acid and drives it from its lodging place.

Mrs. Alice A. Brown, Rhine, N. Y., writes: "For seven years I suffered greatly with rheumatism in my hip; at night I was scarcely able to sleep. The doctor told me to use the 'Pain Expeller' and in a few days the pain was gone. That sounds miraculous, but it does not seem so. I have a bottle.—Adv.

LOGICAL DYSPEPSIA TREATMENT

Importance of Eliminating Acidity and Food Fermentation.
During the past two or three years scientific but frequently appeared in the press concerning the remarkable value of bismuthated magnesia as an antacid, and its ability to promote normal, healthy digestion by preventing food fermentation and neutralizing dangerous stomach acid has often been demonstrated. Until recently druggists could supply bismuthated magnesia in a very convenient form. This new tablet of bismuthated magnesia can now be obtained of druggists everywhere and many physicians are already prescribing them instead of the powder form—Adv.

"You see Ranjab has not forgot," he cried in triumph. "He has not lost the touch of the wizard, ah?"

"You'll lose your wizard some day, doing that," said Dawson, grimly. "It gives me the shivers."

Then, before their startled, horror-struck eyes, the Hindu coolly plunged the glittering blade into his breast, driving it in to the hilt!

"Good Lord!" shrieked the two old men.

Ranjab solemnly replaced the sword in its scabbard.

"It is not always the knife that finds the heart," said he so slowly, so full of meaning, that even the old men grasped the significance of the cryptic remark.

"A teller can be fooled, no matter how closely he watches," said Mr. Dawson, and he was not referring to the amazing sword trick.

"No, sir," said Mr. Riggs, with gloomy trepidation. "I don't like that woman."

The old spell of the Orient had fallen upon the ancients. They were hearing the vague whisperings of voices that came from nowhere, as they had heard them years ago in the mystic silence of the East.

"Sh! One comes," said Ranjab, softly. "It will be the master's son."

An instant later his closet door closed noiselessly behind him and the old men were alone, blinking at each other. There was no sound from the hall. They waited, watching the curtained door. At last they heard footsteps on the stairs, quick footsteps of the young.

Frederick strode rapidly into the room.

CHAPTER VIII.

"He Killed a Woman,"

His face was livid with rage. For a moment he glowered upon the two old men, his fingers working spasmodically, his chest heaving with the volcanic emotions he was trying so hard to subdue. Then he waited about, to glare into the hall.

"In God's name, Freddy, boy, what's happened?" cried old Mr. Riggs, a little tremble.

Some intuition passed before he could trust himself to speak. Ugly veins stood out on his pale temples, as he paced the floor in front of them. "Only Mr. Dawson ventured the vital question, in a somewhat husky voice: 'Have you quarreled with your father, Freddy?'"

The young man threw up his arms in a gesture of despair. There was a wall of misery in his voice as he grated out:

"In the name of God, why should he hate me as he does? What have I done? Am I not a good son to him?"

"Hush!" implored Mr. Dawson, nervously. "He'll hear you."

"Hear me?" cried Frederick, and laughed aloud in his recklessness. "Why shouldn't he hear me? By God, I'll not stand it a day longer. He wouldn't think of treating a dog as he treats me. God, I—I, why, he is actually forcing me to hate him! I do it! I swear to heaven, if I do it! I heart to kill him down!"

"He could not!" he choked up, and the tears came into his eyes. Abruptly turning, he thrust himself upon the two old men, his face on his arms, and sobbed like a child.

And then, distressed beyond the power of speech, mumbled incoherent words of comfort as they slowly edged out toward the door. They listened into the hall and neither spoke until their bedroom door was closed behind them. Mr. Dawson even tried it to see that it was safely latched.

The curtains parted and Yvonne looked in upon the wretched Frederick. There was a look of mingled pain and commiseration in her wide open eyes. For a moment she stood there regarding him in silence. Then she swiftly crossed the room to the couch in the corner where he sat huddled up, his shoulders still shaking with the misery that racked him. Her hand went out to touch the tousled hair, that dropped back, with a glance of apprehension toward the door of the Hindu's closet. An odd expression of alarm crept into her eyes.

"Frederick," she said, softly, almost timidly.

He lifted his head quickly, and then sprang to his feet. His eyes were wet and his lips were drawn. Shame possessed him. He tried to smile, but it was a pitiful failure.

"Oh, I'm so ashamed of—of—" he began in a choked voice.

"Ashamed because you have cried?" he asked quickly. "But no! It is good to cry. It is good for women to cry."

When a strong man breaks down, I should care, I am—oh, I am heart-broken. But come! You must go to a room and bathe your face. Go at once. Your father must not know that you have cried. He—"

"A him!" came from between Frederick's clenched teeth.

"Hush!" she cried, with another glance toward the door. She would not know whether there or still below not was such—

"I'm going to smooth my hair and consider him a brute. Is that it?"

"Hush! Please, please! You know that my heart aches for you, mon ami. It was cruel of him, it was cowardly, yes, cowardly! Now I have said it!" She drew herself up and turned deliberately toward the little door across the room.

His eyes brightened. The crooked ancient turned into an imploring smile. "Forgive me, Yvonne! You must see that I'm beside myself. I—"

"But you must be sensible. Remember he is your father. He is a strange man. There has been a great deal of bitterness in his life. He—"

"But I can't go on the way things are now. I'm getting to be worse than ever. I never have had a kind word from him, seldom a word of any description. Never a kind look. Can you understand how it goes to me?"

"I am your friend," she said slowly. "In this the way to reward me?"

He dropped to his knees and covered her hands with kisses, mumbling his plea for forgiveness.

"I am so terribly unhappy," he said over and over again. "I'd leave this house tonight if it were not that I can't bear the thought of leaving you, Yvonne. I adore you. You are everything in the world to me. I—"

"Get up!" she cried out sharply. He lifted his eyes in dumb wonder and adoration, but not in time to catch the look of triumph that swept across her face.

"You will forgive me?" he cried, coming to his feet. "I—I couldn't help saying it. It was wrong—wrong! But you will forgive me, Yvonne?"

She turned away, walking slowly toward the door. He remained rooted to the spot, blushing with shame and dismay.

"Where are you going? To tell him?" he gasped.

"She waited an instant, and then came toward him. He never could have explained the unaccountable impulse that forced him to fall back a few steps as she approached. Her eyes were gleaming steadily into his, and her red lips were parted.

"That is as it should be," she was saying, but he was never sure that he heard the words. His knees grew weak. He was in the habit of saying, 'You must pull yourself together,' she went on in such a matter of fact tone that he straightened up involuntarily. 'Come! Wipe the tear stains from your cheeks.'

He obeyed, but his lips still quivered with the rage that had been checked by the ascendancy of another and even more devastating emotion. She was standing quite close to him now, her slender figure swaying slightly as if moved by some strange, rhythmic melody to which the heart beat time. Her eyes were soft and velvety again; her smile tender and appealing. The vivid white of her arms and shoulders seemed to shed a soft light about her, so radiant was the sheen of the satin skin.

She moved closer to him, and with swift fingers applied her tiny lace handkerchief to his flushed cheek and eye, laughing merrily as she did so; a low gurgle of infinite sweetness and concern.

He stood like a statue, scarcely breathing, the veins in his throat throbbing violently.

"There!" she said, and deliberately touched the moustache to her own smiling lips, before replacing it in her bodice, next to the warm, soft skin. "I have been thinking, Frederick," she said, suddenly serious. "Perhaps it would be better if we were not alone when the others came up. Go at once and fetch the two old men. Tell them I expect them here to witness the magic. It appears to be a family party, so why exclude them? Be quick!"

He dashed off to obey her command. She lighted a cigarette at the table, her unsmiling eyes fixed on the door of the Hindu's closet. Then, with a little sigh, she sank down on the broad couch and stretched her supple body in the ecstasy of complete relaxation.

The scene at the dinner table had been most distressing. Up to the instant of the outburst her husband had been in singularly gay spirits, a circumstance so unusual that the whole party wondered not a little. If the others were vaguely puzzled by his high humor, not so Yvonne. She understood him better than anyone else in the world; she read his mind as she would have read an open book. There was riot, not joy, in the heart of the brilliant talker at the head of the table. He was talking against the savagery that strained so hard at its leash.

At her right sat Frederick, at her left the renowned Doctor Hodder, whose feats at the operating table were vastly more successful than his efforts at the dinner table. He was a very wonderful surgeon, but equally famous as a bore of the first rank. Yvonne could not endure him.

Mrs. Desmond and Lydia were there. This was an excellent opportunity to entertain them on an occasion of more or less magnitude.

Frederick, deceived by his father's sprightly mood, entered rather recklessly into the lively discussion. He seldom took his eyes from the face of his beautiful stepmother, and many of his remarks were uttered sotto voce for her ear alone. Suddenly James Brood called out his name in a sharp, commanding tone. Frederick, at the moment, engaged in a low, chattering of words with Yvonne, did not hear him. Brood spoke again, loudly, harshly. There was dead silence at the table.

"We will excuse you, Frederick," said he, a deadly calm in his voice. The puzzled expression in the young man's face slowly gave way to a steady glare of fury. He could not trust himself to speak. "I regret exceedingly that you cannot take wine in moderation. A breath of fresh air will be of benefit to you. You may join us upstairs later on."

"I haven't drunk a full glass of champagne," began the young man in unadvised protest.

Brood smiled indulgently, but there was a sinister gleam in his gray eyes. "I think you would better take my advice," he said, levelly.

Frederick went deathly pale. "Very well, sir," he said in a low, suppressed voice. "Without another word he got up from the table and walked out of the room."

He spoke the truth later on when he told Yvonne he could not understand. But she understood. She knew that James Brood had endured the situation as long as it was in his power to endure, and she knew that it was her fault entirely that poor Frederick had been exposed to this crowning bit of humiliation.

As she sat in the dim study awaiting her stepson's reappearance with the two old men, her active, far-seeing mind was striving to estimate the cost of that tragic clash. Not the cost to herself or to Frederick, but to James Brood!

The Messrs. Dawson and Riggs, indelibly placed over their rehabilitation, were barely through delivering themselves of their protestations of undying fealty, when the sound of voices came up from the lower hall. Frederick started to leave the room, not caring to face those who had witnessed his unceremonious degradation. Yvonne hurried to his side.

"Where are you going?" she cried, sharply.

He stared at her in wonder. "You cannot expect me to stay here—"

"But certainly," she exclaimed. "Listen! I will tell you what to do. Her voice sank to an imperative whisper. He listened in sheer amazement, his face growing dark with rebellion as she proceeded to unfold her plan for a present victory over his father."

"No, no! I can't do that! Never, Yvonne," he protested.

"For my sake, Freddy. Don't forget that you owe something to me. I command you to do as I tell you. It is the only way. Make haste! Open the window. Get the breath of air he prescribes. And when they are all here, apologize for your condition!"

When Doctor Hodder and Mrs. Gunning entered the room a few minutes later young Brood was standing in the open window, drinking in the cold night air, and she was blithely regaling the blinking old men with an account of her stepson's unhappy efforts to drink all of the wine in sight! As she told it, it was a most amusing experiment.

James Brood was the last to enter, with Miss Follwell. He took in the situation at a glance. Was it relief that sprang into his eyes as he saw the two old men?

Frederick came down from the window, somewhat too swiftly for one who is moved by shame and contrition, and faced the group, with a well-assumed look of mortification in his low, twitching face. He spoke in low, repressed tones, but not once did he permit his gaze to encounter that of his father.

"I'm awfully sorry to have made a nuisance of myself. It does go to my head and I—I dare say the heat of the room helped to do the work. I'm all right now, however. The fresh air did me a lot of good. Hope you'll overlook my foolish attempt to be a doer of a fellow."

He hesitated a moment and then went on, more clearly. "I'm all right now, father. It shall not happen again. I can promise you that."

A close observer might have seen the muscles of his jaw harden as he uttered the final sentence. He intended that his father should take it as a threat, not as an apology.

Brood was watching him closely, a puzzled expression in his eyes; gradually it developed into something like admiration in the clamor of voices that ensued the older man detected the presence of an underlying note of censure for his own behavior. For the first time in many years he experienced a feeling of shame.

Someone was speaking at his elbow. Janey Follwell, in her young, enthusiastic voice, thrilled something into his ear that caused him to look at her in utter amazement. It was so astounding that he could not believe he heard aright. He mumbled in a questioning tone, "I beg your pardon?" and she repeated her remark.

"How wonderfully like you Frederick is, Mr. Brood." Then she added "Do you know, I've never noticed it until tonight. It's really remarkable."

"It is a most gratifying discovery," said he, and turned to speak to Mrs. Desmond. He did not take his gaze from Frederick's white, set face, however, and, despite the fact that he knew the girl had uttered an idle commonplace, he was annoyed to find himself studying the features of Matilda's boy with an interest that seemed almost laughable when he considered it later on.

His guests found much to talk about in the room. He was soon being dragged from one subject to another and ordered to revivify the history, the uses and the nature of countless things that obviously were intended to be just what they seemed; such as vases, shilds, lamps, and so forth. He was ably assisted by Messrs. Riggs and Dawson, who held prodigious stores of rivalry.

"What a perfectly delightful Buddha!" cried Miss Janey, stopping in front of the idol. "How perfectly lovely he is—or is it a she, Mr. Brood?"

Frederick joined Lydia at the table. "A delicious scene, wasn't it?" he asked, blithely, in lowered tones. Her fingers touched his. "What did you mean, Freddy? Oh, I felt so sorry for you. It was dreadful!"

"Don't take it so seriously, Freddy," he said, squeezing her hand gently. Both of them realized that it was the nearest thing to a caress that had passed between them in a fortnight or longer. A wave of shame swept through him. "Dear old girl, my dear old girl," he whispered brokenly.

Her eyes radiated joy, her lips parted in a wan, tremulous smile of surprise, and a soft sigh escaped them. "My dear, dear boy," she murmured, and was happier than she had been in weeks.

"See here, old chap," said one of the middle-aged gentlemen, again consulting his watch as he loudly addressed his host, "can't you hurry this performance of yours along a bit? It is after ten, you know."

"I will summon the magician," said Brood. "Be prepared, ladies and gentlemen, to meet the devil. Ranjab is the prince of darkness!"

He lifted his hand to strike the gong that stood near the edge of the table.

Involuntarily four pairs of eyes fastened their gaze upon the door to the Hindu's closet. Three mellow, softly reverberating "booms" filled the room. Almost instantly the voice of the Hindu was heard.

"A-lee, sabbi!"

He came swiftly into the room from the hall, still not from his closet. The look of relief that Yvonne's eyes was short-lived. She saw amazement in the faces of the two old men—and knew.

"After we have had the feast of magic," Brood was saying, "Miss Desmond will read to you ladies and gentlemen, that chapter of our journal."

"My Gaud!" roared both of the middle-aged gentlemen, looking at their watches.

"—relating to—"

"You'll have to excuse me, Brood, really, you know. Important engagement uptown."

"Sit down, Cruger," exclaimed Hodder. "The lady won't miss you."

"—relating to our first encounter with the great and only Ranjab," pursued Brood, oracularly. "We found him in a little village far up in the mountains. He was under sentence of death for murder. By the way, Yvonne, the knife you have in your hand is the very weapon the good law used in the commission of his crime. He was in prison and was to die within a fortnight after our arrival in the town. I heard of his unhappy plight and all that had led up to it. His case interested me tremendously. One night, a week before the proposed execution, my friends and I stormed the little prison and rescued him. We were just getting over the choler and needed excitement. That was fifteen years ago. He has been my trusted body servant ever since. I am sure you will be interested in what I have written about that thrilling adventure."

Yvonne had dropped the ugly knife upon the table as if it were a thing that scorched her fingers.

"Did he—really kill a man?" she whispered Miss Janey, with horror in her eyes.

"He killed a woman. His wife, Miss Janey. She had been faithless, you see. He cut her heart out. And now Ranjab, are you ready?"

"The Hindu intimated 'Ranjab is always ready, sabbi,' said he."

An Open, Square, Aboveboard, Direct Appeal to the Intelligence and Judgment of the People

The railroads of Pennsylvania and New Jersey believe that the public should be fully advised concerning the Full Crew laws in these states. Costly experience has demonstrated that these laws have worked to the detriment of public interest and that their repeal would redound greatly to the advantage of the people.

Not a Fight On Trainmen

The railroad companies making this announcement wish the public to clearly understand that this appeal is in no way to be construed as being aimed at the trainmen in their employ, nor is it an effort to curtail operating expenses at the cost of public safety or service.

The companies point to the fact, with justifiable pride, that whenever public safety and convenience demanded an increased number of employees, the necessary men were put on trains. Behind this statement is a record of advancements and improvement achievements which is a most vital factor of calm and dispassionate consideration of the laws in question.

But when arbitrary laws are passed which compel these railroad companies to burden their payrolls with some $2,000,000 annually for wasted, unwarranted extra labor, and which actually means a decrease, rather than an increase, in operating efficiency, together with heavier casualty lists, it is undeniable that the public should be put in full touch with existing conditions that the people may judge wisely for themselves should an effort be made to impugn the sincere motives which prompt this educational campaign.

How Full Crew Law Works

A twenty-nine-car freight train can be operated with five men. Add a car and an extra man must go on. The law requires no larger crew on a hundred-car train.

A four-car passenger train can run with five men. On a five-car or longer train there must be an extra man. Even if all the cars are Pullmans, with porters and a Pullman conductor, a six-man railroad crew is required.

A milk or express train of twenty or more cars, running through, sealed, and virtually without stops, must carry a crew of six. The only place four of them would ride would be in the end car.

When the Full Crew law became effective in Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Railroad Lines East of Pittsburgh and Erie were operating in Pennsylvania 2,971 weekday trains. Of these, 1,198 passenger and 1,061 freight trains were manned up to or beyond the law's requirements.

The 1,198 passenger trains which were provided with crews equal to or in excess of the law's requirements consisted principally of local or semi-local trains, making frequent stops and handling a large number of passengers. The second brakeman was employed to expedite the departure of trains from stations and to assist conductors in collecting tickets.

The 1,061 freight trains on which the law required no additional men consisted of local freight trains carrying package freight, on which brakemen were required to load and unload cars; road shifters, doing a large amount of work, necessitating the throwing of switches and much hand braking on cars; mine trains, placing empty cars and picking up loaded cars, and through slow freight trains of heavy tonnage on the Philadelphia and Middle Divisions on which the brakemen riding on the front part of the trains were required to assist the firemen.

Official Casualty Statistics

The effect of the Full Crew laws in forcing extra men into already adequate train crews, thus dividing responsibility, has been to increase the hazard of operation. This fact is conclusively proved by the official figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The great number of persons killed who were neither employees nor passengers have not been included, for it is obvious that extra men on trains are powerless to prevent such casualties.

The Pennsylvania Full Crew law took effect on July 19, 1911. The Commission's figures show that for the three-year period preceding this date 10,186 employees and passengers were killed. Since the law became operative, the total number killed shows an increase, or 10,372 persons.

The casualty list of the Pennsylvania Railroad for the six months preceding the enactment and the first six months of 1914, when the law was in full force and effect, discloses the following startling comparison:

	Before Law, First Half 1911	Under Law, First Half 1914
Killed	15	16
Injured	1046	1699
Trainmen	1	2
Passengers	99	141
	16	18
	1145	1840

*Fell from train.

What the Extra Man Costs

Twenty Railroads in Pennsylvania and New Jersey last year paid in employment of superfluous brakemen $2,000,000. That would have bought: 200 steel coaches; 80 locomotives; 67,000 tons of rails; $40,000,000; 300 miles of track; 65 grade crossings.

Rejected by Other States

A Full Crew law was enacted in Missouri and signed by the Governor in April, 1913. In November, 1914, it was submitted to a referendum vote. The people repudiated the law by a vote of 324,085 against 159,593.

A proposed Full Crew law for Texas failed to pass owing to the popular protest against it, led by the farmers.

In 1907, Governor Charles E. Hughes, of New York, vetoed an attempt to enact a Full Crew law in that state.

In 1912, Governor John A. Dix, of New York, also vetoed a Full Crew measure.

Governor Foss, of Massachusetts, vetoed a Full Crew bill passed by the legislature.

In 1913 the State Assembly wisely referred a Full Crew law to the Railroad Commission of Connecticut, who promptly condemned it.

Governor Cruce, of Oklahoma, vetoed a Full Crew bill in 1913.

Attempts to enact Full Crew laws in Colorado, Delaware, Virginia, and Ohio were defeated.

In Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York, and Maryland such laws are in force. In the interest of the public, the railroads, and the great body of railroad employees, these burdensome laws should be repealed. In Pennsylvania, approximately 65,000 men are employed in train service. Only 2,500 of these are extra brakemen.

Will Wage a Just Fight

Railroads operating in Pennsylvania and New Jersey are determined to place their case squarely and fairly before the people of those states. They are firmly convinced that the people—all of whom, without exception, are affected more or less directly by the imposition of this annual $2,000,000 burden, and thousands of whom are direct sufferers—will, knowing what a continuation of these harmful laws means to them, voice their wishes in no uncertain way to their elected representatives at Harrisburg and Trenton.

This campaign of public enlightenment will be waged by the railroads in a manner that cannot possibly be legitimately assailed. There will be no lobbying, no star chamber conferences, or private deals to influence public opinion or legislative action. The campaign will be fought in the open, purely on its merits.

Railroad Pledge to Trainmen and Public

Definitely and finally to give public notice that the railroads ask only a square deal all around in this matter, the presidents of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, in announcing on February 9 that the railroads intended to work for repeal of the Full Crew laws, pledged themselves as follows:

"Let us add that if there shall be evidence that without such laws the railroads would underman trains, to the hardship of employees or the detriment of or danger to the public, that, assuming the present Public Service acts do not give to the commissions ample powers to determine what crews are necessary on different trains and to compel the railroads to man trains as ordered, we will openly support such amendments to the present acts as may be necessary to give such assurance."

The railroads now appeal directly to the people, who demand the greatest safety at all times and who realize that a policy of wise economy, and not one of wasted revenue, will enable the railroads to adequately fulfill their obligations and meet those demands as they should be met.

R. L. O'DONNELL,

Chairman, Executive Committee, Associated Railroads of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 16.—Thomas Austin, alias John McFadden, was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace L. S. Rhodes last evening charged with larceny by Andy Hootch at the hearing house of Mrs. Patterson on Yoder avenue. He was committed to jail in default of $500 bail. The arrest was made by Chief of Police Frank McQuinn of Scottsdale and he was turned over to Chief Constable Edward McQuinn. He was placed in the borough lockup last evening and will be taken to jail today. When questioned concerning his having an alias, he stated that he could have as many names as he wanted.

Efforts of the local officers to locate Joe Hiko, better known as "Honey," who is wanted for a holdup in Lodi Saturday evening, have been futile. Saturday evening when Hiko was of Lodi No. 1 was going home from the company store he was accompanied by two men, one of them striking him, and he immediately recognized Hiko, but did not know the other man. One hundred and fifty dollars and some small change was taken. Hiko is married and lives at Lodi No. 17.

Miss Ruth Rivers on last Saturday afternoon gave a party at her home. The decorations and lights were played during the afternoon. Miss Margaret Fitzpatrick entertained 50 of the St. Joseph's Sodality at a card party at her home. A very enjoyable evening was spent. The prizes were carried off by Miss Anna Hittman and James Fitzpatrick. Refreshments were served.

The following resolution, supported by a unanimous vote of the congregation, was passed by the session of the Presbyterian Church last Sunday morning: In view of the delinquency and faithlessness of Miss Mary Myers as organist of the Presbyterian Church for the past five years, the session hereby expresses its most cordial appreciation of her services, and its hopes and prayers for her success and an abiding joy in the new relation which obliges her to leave us. Miss Myers' resignation took effect Sunday morning. She is succeeded by Miss Adelaide Ramsey.

Sunday night, February 15, the Union Presbyterian Sunday school will have a recognition and graduation service. The teachers' training class will be presented with diplomas. The following persons compose the class: Olive Miller, Sara Smith, Ruby and Martha Adams, Elizabeth Oyster, Mary Ellen Dillon, Alice Ramsey and Mabel Stuffer. The special music will consist of a duet by Mrs. Frank Cooper and Mrs. Presley Hurst, and solo by John Bowman and Miss Pauline Abraham. At the close of the children's chorus will furnish some special music.

Mr. and Mrs. James Zundell are the proud parents of a daughter, left by the clerk at their Eagle street home. Miss Groschland of Quebec is the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Hoffman. Miss Mary Ida McGee is spending a week in Pittsburg.

Edith Hawkins and Irwin Prince of Greensburg, Bertha Hartwick of this place and L. B. Miller of Johnstown were guests of Scottsdale friends Sunday.

Mr. Gilligan and Harry Shuley of Lattrobe were visiting friends here. William Campbell and William Shuley of Scottsdale were guests of friends here Sunday.

WASHING WON'T RID
HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By this tonight, and by morning most if all of your dandruff will be gone; if three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find, too, that all itching and itching of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

A HOME-MADE COUGH SYRUP CHEAP

Easily Made and Guaranteed

The difference in buying one of the most efficient, latest and up-to-date cough and cold remedies (which can be made at home), and buying the old, ordinary, ready-made kind, is that with the new one you get a large proportion of sugar and water, besides paying for bottles, corks and labels; and it usually requires 2 to 3 bottles of the old-fashioned, ready-made remedy to break up a cough or cold, while 2 ounces (50c worth) of Schiffmann's new Concentrated Expectantant which is so strongly concentrated that 2 ounces, when mixed at home with simply one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of water, makes a full pint (16 ounces) of excellent cough remedy, and will be sufficient to probably last the whole family the entire winter. It positively contains no chloroform, opium, morphine or other narcotic, and is so pleasant that children like to take it. It is altogether different from all the other remedies. Arrangements have been made with Graham & Company to refund the money to any person who finds it does not give perfect satisfaction, or if it is not found the very best remedy ever used for coughs, colds, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and hoarseness. In fact, any druggist of this city will sell it under the same guarantee. You will be the sole judge, and under the positive guarantee by these druggists, absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy. J. J. Schiffmann, Prop., St. Paul, Minn.—Adv.
